"APS Witness Levine testified that, if he had been asked before the reactor trip whether he thought the operator 'had been trained, was knowledgeable, had adequate procedures, and would have been able to execute the startup effectively,' he would have answered 'yes.' Thus, it is clear that management was unaware of relevant opinions and facts known by others before and at the time of the trip. The reactor trip was the result of an individual operator not following appropriate procedures. We agree with APS that accepting Staff's position would require us to engage in impermissible hindsight and the speculation required to reach Staff's result violates the prudence standard. Therefore, we find that the outage associated with the August 26, 2005, reactor trip was not the result of APS' imprudence, and we will allow recovery of the costs associated with the outage via the PSA."
